

Kids learn fire safety at EdVenture

by Kim Foster - The State Newspaper

The Lexington County Fire Service recently worked with campers at Edventure Children's Museum to teach them how to be fire safe. In this photo, campers were quizzed on what to do when coming in contact with a warm door in a building that is burning. The camp was held in coordination with the South Carolina State Fire Marshal's office and funded by a FEMA grant. Camp participants also visited the Fire Service mobile fire safety house located at the Lexington County training facility. (Photos by Kim Foster)

Click image for more photos and descriptions.